Viola Dana at the Columbia

Today sees the final screening of The Flower of No Man's Land," with dainty Viola Dana in the part of the today and tomorrow. Flower the story is one of the gripping action sort where everything moves with a fast tempo, and the moves with a fast tempo, and the characters are the sort that are found in the woods country where city ways have not as yet spoiled the real men of the open. This dainty hit of mountain flower falls in love with a man from the east. A singer of songs who goes through a form of marriage with her and takes her to hig some in the east. There she learns that he is already married and she leaves for her mountain home. The old Indian, who has watched over her since her father died, takes it upon himself to avenge her wrongs and kills the betrayer. The picture is a snappy, virile story in marked contrast with its primitive men and city parasites. Viola Dana has a good part as the flower, while the Indian is a bit of character acting that will remain with picture patrons for many moons to come. Max Figure 1. for many moons to come. STELLA LANGFORD COMES HOME TODAY

Langford, pretty 15-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Langford, of East Monroe street missing for several months, since she escaped from or was spirited away from the Florence Crittendon Home, would reach Phoenix this morning. She is accompanied, according to this information, by "Detective" Layne and Miss Crissle Gilchrist, superimtendent of the local Associated Tharities.

Ever since the Schurday afternoon that Stella Langford mysteriously made her was from the local institution, where she was being detained tution, where she was being detained as the proseculing witness in a case against Lorenzo Boldo, Jr., until about two weeks ago, the where-shouts of the young girl have been inknown to her family or to the authorities. Recently, however, sit claimed, she walked into the office of the Associated Charities in Port tand, Ore., and told a story of want. The Portland authorities communicated with Miss Glichrist with the result that orders were issued for the detention of the girl until an officer could arrive there. Detective' Layne, who is as much of a mystery as several other features of the case was sent for her.

On the return trip, so it is stated, the girl took desperately ill and was removed from the train at San Jose and taken to a hospital. It is said and taken to a hospital. It is said she underwent an operation there. Now, it is reported that, believing she was dying, the girl made a depo-sition declaring that the sition declaring that she was assisted in leaving Arizona by the family of young Boido. Upon this deposition, it is reported, another charge may be lodged. It is for the purposs oressing this new charge that till is now being brought back. Incidentally Lorenzo Boldo, Jr., has disappeared quite as effectively as

Meeting the demand by the city for additional lights, the Pacific Gas & Electric Company has recently installed, in two of its street lighting listricts, the newest type of street lights. Fifty of these lamps were installed in the western or Capitol district, a few months ago, and fifty flore were placed in service in the northeast section of the city last night.

These lamps differ from the former ype of arc lamps used in the city, nasmuch as the lighting unit is a arge Tungsten incandescent lamp of large Tungsten incandescent lamp of 1,666 candle power, giving a more brilliant and a steadler light than the carbon lamp. The lamps have also been spaced closer together has increasing the illumination of he streets to a large extent.

These lamps together with the new rnamental posts recently installed by the city of Phoenix on Central avenue, make Phoenix one of the best lighted citles in the southwest.
